Key Trends In The Bromine Market

Strategic partnerships and collaborations have emerged as a trend shaping the bromine market outlook. Major companies operating in the bromine sector are focused on partnerships and collaborations in order to expand their expansion into new areas and become industry leaders. For instance, in February 2021, W. R. Grace and Company, a US-based Chemicals company acquired Albemarle Corporation for $570 million. This acquisition significantly step-up W. R. Grace and the company's modest footprint in the pharmaceutical services industry. Albemarle Corporation is a US-based Chemical manufacturing company that specializes in bromine, refining catalysts, lithium, and applied surface treatments. Moreover, in June 2019, BSEF, the International Bromine Council with Avalon Consulting, and BSEF's India consulting partners collaborated with Indian Chemical Council to launch the India Bromine Platform (IBP)). IBP is an opportunity to share technical information on bromine and its applications to enhance knowledge. The IBP's mission is to spot and address issues pertinent to the Indian and global bromine industry.

Overview Of The Bromine Market

The bromine market consists of sales of bromine by entities (organizations, sole traders, and partnerships) that are used as a water disinfectant or purifier. Bromine is a chemical element with deep red color toxic liquid with an irritating and offensive odor. Bromine is used in making dyes, fumigants, flameproofing agents, sanitizers, water purification compounds, agents for photography, vegetable oil, and an emulsifier in citrus-flavored soft drinks. It is also used as a disinfectant for surfaces due to its damaging effects on microorganisms.
