Gastric Cancer Drug Market Overview:

Gastric cancer is also referred to as stomach cancer which is a type of cancer that begins when the cancer cells form in the inner lining of the stomach. This cancer generally progresses slowly. Indigestion, heartburn, slight nausea and loss of appetite among others are considered some of the early symptoms of this cancer. As the tumor progresses, the symptoms get worse such as vomiting, yellowish eyes or skin, stomach pain, swelling in stomach, weight loss, constipation and blood in stool.

The growing prevalence of lymphoma, adenocarcinoma, gastrointestinal stromal tumors, carcinoid tumors among population across the globe acts as one of the major factors driving the growth of gastric cancer drug market. The adoption of unhealthy lifestyle such as chronic consumption of tobacco products and alcohol and intake of diet with high fat, spicy food, less proteins consumption and physical inactivity accelerate the gastric cancer drug market growth. The growing number of cancer treatment centers and availability of combination therapies further influence the gastric cancer drug market. Additionally, improving healthcare system, growth in population, rise in healthcare expenditure and surge in investment for research projects positively affect the gastric cancer drug market. Furthermore, research and development activities and include innovations in treatment extend profitable opportunities to the gastric cancer drug market players in the forecast period of 2021 to 2028.

On the other hand, high cost associated with the treatments and lack of sufficient financial support from health insurance policies are the factors expected to obstruct the gastric cancer drug market growth. Patent expiry from many companies and introduction of generic drugs are projected to challenge the gastric cancer drug market in the forecast period of 2021-2028.
