How Netsweeper's Web Filtering Can Help ISPs Meet Their Regulatory Requirements

Governments around the world are looking to exercise their digital sovereignty. Governments are looking to enforce the same laws they have offline but in the online space. ISPs will need to implement tools to support government goals, or they will be mandated to do so as is already the case in many jurisdictions.

"Most people don't realize that frequently illegal gambling is used for money laundering. Additionally, tax remittance across borders can be a challenge. This lost revenue is causing havoc at a time when governments need that money. Netsweeper has been helping telcos and governments for over 20 years. Web filters like Netsweeper also protect children by blocking child exploitation and human trafficking at the core networks countrywide." — Perry Roach, CEO of Netsweeper.
