NASHVILLE, TN, USA, October 3, 2022

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Just weeks after launching the new Sekulow Brothers Podcast on September 12th, it is already becoming a huge hit with audiences on the Salem Podcast Network. Hosts Jordan and Logan Sekulow deliver three new episodes each week, filled with commentary and analysis of a wide variety of topics.

From the moment we first started to put this podcast together with Logan and Jordan, we knew there would be tremendous interest in what these two had to say."

Phil Boyce, Salem Media's senior vice president for spoken word format

The third week's episodes covered topics as wide ranging as the impact of Hurricane Ian, Vice President Kamala Harris' North Korea slip-up, NASA slamming a satellite into an asteroid, and the passing of rapper and cultural icon Coolio.

"The audience response to our podcast has been so much fun," says Logan. "In this crowded field, it's so great to see that not only are people finding us but they're listening, learning, and laughing. We didn't plan on being a comedy news show, but when you put us together, it's just simply what happened."

Adds Jordan, "This is organic and grassroots, and we can't wait to see happens next."

Week three delivered over 100,000 combined downloads and views, finding significant traction at Rumble, which is delivering nearly half of the audience to date.

"From the moment we first started to put this podcast together with Logan and Jordan, we knew there would be tremendous interest in what these two had to say," said Phil Boyce, Salem Media's senior vice president for spoken word format. "The early results are fabulous, and show a faster growth trajectory than most of our other podcasts. If you haven't had a chance to listen yet, what are you waiting for?"

The Salem Podcast Network launched in January 2021 and is already ranked as the 11th most listened to podcast network on the Triton Digital platform, with over 17 million average downloads per month.
