

NATIONAL NON-PROFIT SHOES THAT FIT PARTNERS WITH GEICO TO DELIVER NEW ATHLETIC SHOES TO STUDENTS IN PHILADELPHIA, PA.

PHILADELPHIA, PA, UNITED STATES ,
October 11, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ --
Non-profit Shoes That Fit is proud to announce a second-year national partnership with GEICO that will provide more than 8,000 pairs of brand-new athletic shoes to students in need. Shoes That Fit will host a delivery event at Mastery Prep Elementary School in Philadelphia, PA.

Shoes That Fit will be on hand to volunteer and assist in handing out new athletic shoes to 570 in-need students at the school. Media is invited to cover the event. Kindly RSVP to Lisa Kaufman to arrange interviews with Shoes That Fit and/or Mastery Prep Elementary representatives.

The GEICO and Shoes That Fit partnership will include 16 states plus Washington DC and deliver brand new athletic shoes to 8,000 students.

"It's great to partner with Shoes That Fit to provide kids with support they need to thrive while also giving our associates an opportunity to give back and volunteer in their communities," said Carl Tims, GEICO's Vice President of Community Engagement and Chief Diversity Officer.

In addition to the delivery events, more than 20 schools and organizations in the following states have begun to receive direct shipments of shoes to distribute to their students: Florida, Maryland, Hawaii, Texas, Iowa, Missouri, Virginia, Arizona, New York, Georgia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Indiana, and Washington.

"Shoes are intrinsically important to kids. Too many low-income families are forced to choose rent and food over shoes, leaving children wearing shoes that hurt, embarrass them, cause them to miss out on physical activities and sometimes miss school altogether. New shoes make a basic and lasting impact! We are so grateful to GEICO for meeting a basic need and making a lasting impact on the lives of kids across the country by providing 8,000 pairs of shoes!" --CEO and Executive Director, Shoes That Fit, Amy Fass
