(Shanghai) Co., Ltd. has recently passed the audit of Bureau Veritas, the world-renowned company in testing, inspection and certification services (TIC), and technical consultations.

Linguitronics' ISO 17100 Translation Management System Certificate is a recognition of the company's professional work ethics, well-established translation procedure structure, advanced translation management system, and meticulous linguist selection standards.

ISO 17100 is the current international standard for translation service management systems in the language service industry, covering translation procedures, linguist standards, tools and technologies, and other elements that determine the translation quality. The Certificate aims to promote and guarantee that language service providers operate more scientific, efficient businesses to provide professional, quality translation services for their clients.

Established in 2002, Linguitronics Shanghai has served our clients with a professional team for 20 years, meeting and exceeding clients' needs and overcoming challenges in our path to continued linguistic service improvements to provide the most suited, high-quality language solutions.
