A new study by Market.us projects the gravity-based water purifier market to reach USD 1.9 billion by 2025 from USD 1.3 billion in 2020, at a CAGR of 8.5%

NEW YORK CITY, NEW YORK, UNITED STATES, October 13, 2022

/EINPresswire.com/ -- A new water purifier is set to revolutionize the way we clean our water. The gravity-based water purifier uses the power of gravity to pull contaminated water through a series of filters, leaving you with clean, safe water. Gravity-based water purifiers are water-purification devices that use activated carbon or ultrafiltration. These purifiers are not like other water-purification systems and do not require electricity. They also offer many benefits, such as cost-efficiency and ease of use. They are a great water-purification option for domestic use.

Because of their efficiency and portability, gravity-based water purification systems have been widely adopted around the world. These purifiers are also in demand due to the increasing preference for simple and convenient water purification methods. Due to the declining quality of water resources in Africa and Asia Pacific, governments are investing rapidly in efficient and sustainable purification infrastructures.

The report analyzes and forecasts the market at global and regional levels. The study provides forecasts based on technology, end-use industry, and geography. It also offers an in-depth analysis of the key players operating in the market, along with their company profiles, product offerings, financial details, recent developments, and key growth strategies. The growing popularity of gravity-based water purifiers is due to their cost-effectiveness and easy maintenance. These systems do not require electricity to operate and can be easily installed. In addition, they are available in a wide range of designs and sizes to suit the individual needs of consumers.
