A crawler tractor is an automobile that uses tracks to move rather than wheels. It can be used in a variety of ways, such as connecting to a bulldozer blade or a ripper and being used for engineering applications. In addition, it could be connected with a three-point hitch for use in farming applications.

Report ID: 17440

- Owing to temporary closure of manufacturing facilities and disruptions in the supply chain, the global crawler tractor market has been negatively impacted, especially in the initial period of the pandemic.

- Unavailability of raw materials and shortage of skilled labor force was a major challenge, which is why, carrying out manufacturing in full capacity was impossible.
- The demand from applications sectors reduced significantly due to stoppage of new construction, deployment, and maintenance activities during the lockdown. However, the demand is expected to regain during the post-lockdown.

Rise in demand for modern equipment from various end-user industries such as agriculture, construction, and mining are anticipated to drive the crawler tractor market growth. In addition, companies running in this industry are undertaking rigorous research to expand and enhance cutting-edge crawler tractor skills and programs.
