FRANKFURT, GERMANY, October 14, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Frankfurt, DE— Most painters or artists use a variety of muses to be able to paint the perfect piece, author Chris M. Arceneaux uses his experience after going through brain surgery to remove a golf ball size piece of his right temporal lobe to paint “The Shield of an Epilepsy Warrior”. Arceneaux was able to use this as his muse for penning The Epilepsy Shield Project: The First 120 Paintings which is also set to be displayed at the 2022 Frankfurt Book Fair this coming October 19-23, 2022.

“See the first ten completed epilepsy awareness painting series of The Epilepsy Shield Project done by Chris M. Arceneaux after he underwent brain surgery in 2014 to remove a golf ball size piece of his right temporal lobe that had scar tissue from a lesion in it made him seizure free while being able to take lower doses of anti-seizure medicines. After his surgery, he became an epilepsy advocate online where someone suggested that he could try to use his artistic ability in his advocacy work.”
