

Osmosis Receives Best Company Work-Life Balance, Best Compensation, Perks, and Benefits Awards

PHILADELPHIA, PA, USA, October 17, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Osmosis.org, the leading health education platform that empowers millions of current and future clinicians and caregivers worldwide with the best learning experience possible, has received the following awards by Comparably, a leading workplace culture and compensation monitoring site: Happiest Employees, Best Company Compensation, Best Company Work-Life Balance, and Best Company Perks & Benefits.

This recognition follows awards for Best Career Growth, Best CEOs for Diversity and Women, and Best Company Outlook earlier this year, as well as Best Company Culture, Best CEO, and Best Product & Design Team in 2021 (<https://www.comparably.com/companies/osmosis/awards>).

Osmosis was recently acquired by Elsevier, a global leader in information and analytics. Elsevier received 12 Comparably awards this year, including Best Global Culture, Best Company Work-Life Balance, Best CEOs for Women, Best Career Growth, and Happiest Employees.

"Perhaps the thing I love most about working here is that everyone on the Osmosis team genuinely cares for you and your growth, both professionally and personally," said Ryan Umphrey, Business Development Representative. "I feel more at home, more comfortable, and more supported than I ever have before. I'm incredibly grateful to work alongside such caring, inspiring, and truly wonderful humans."

"One of the many good things about working at Osmosis is the incredible work-life balance! This was especially noticeable during the early days of the pandemic when my toddler's childcare was closed for months. It's been wonderful to have the flexibility and trust to work asynchronously when life throws you curveballs," said Brooke Leddy, Senior Principal Software Engineer.
