

112 Year Old, Closed Armory in Hudson Opening Up Doors - Virtually on Nov 9th for Donors

Hudson Armory in Massachusetts opens its doors to a camera crew on November 9th in honor of Veteran's Day. Senator Eldridge to present $50K w/ National Guard.

HUDSON, MA, USA, October 24, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Historic, castle-inspired National Guard Armory in Hudson, MA has captivated MetroWest citizens for over a century, but has been off limits to the public for decades. The Armory was designed by the same architect as Fenway Park and built in 1910 for the Military Volunteer Militia.

After nearly 112 years, the Hudson Armory was at risk of being lost forever to condos or demolition, until the community banded together to save it.

The livestream on November 9th inside the Armory will be the first time some residents will have seen inside in over 50 years. It is vital to honor our past and shape our future.”

Tom Desmond, President of Hudson Cultural Alliance

The local residents who formed a non-profit organization, the Hudson Cultural Alliance, to convert the building into a Cultural and Performing Arts Center serving MetroWest, took over the building at the end of August 2022. The building is not yet able to host the public in person due to required safety renovations, but in response to the thousands who asked for it, the HCA is hosting a virtual sneak peek.

On November 9th from 12-2pm, a film crew will be let in to Live-Stream the first public tour of the Armory in decades and celebrate it's military history for Veteran's Day. Stories will be shared that have been gathered by those who served at the site spanning from the early 1900's to more recent history.

IT'S HAPPENING!
Donate to see inside!
