Leslie, who testified as a coercive interrogation expert in Iowa for the defense at the high-profile Cristhian Bahena Rivera's suppression hearing, says this was a good example. Leslie explains that Cristhian Bahena Rivera had been charged on August 22, 2018, with first-degree murder in the disappearance and killing of Mollie Tibbetts. Mollie was a student at the University of Iowa and had been out for a jog one evening when she disappeared.

Leslie's new book, which will be released in late 2023, entitled "How Wrong Did They Get It," explores how this case became extremely divisive when, at the time, President Donald Trump weighed in politicizing the case. Leslie says this had placed unnecessary pressure on the various law enforcement agencies involved to make an arrest quickly.

Leslie says that in the book, he will reveal critical evidence that was present but ignored by law enforcement during the investigation and specific details about the eleven-hour interrogation never released to the public from his own examination.
