

LINNE Industries Receives 2022 Blue Hen 17&43 Award

Horn Entrepreneurship and the Lerner College of Business and Economics announced that LINNE Industries is among the 2022 Blue Hen 17&43 award winners.

NEWARK, DELAWARE, USA, October 24, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Horn Entrepreneurship and the Lerner College of Business and Economics announced that LINNE Industries is among the 2022 Blue Hen 17&43 award winners.

LINNE Industries is the Delaware innovator and manufacturer of PondHawk. PondHawk® is the first fully integrated solar-powered pond aeration system that provides a grid-free solution to improve water quality in ponds and lakes. PondHawk is improving water quality in stormwater, golf course, HOA, department of transportation, and agriculture ponds throughout North America.

“LINNE Industries is honored to receive a 2022 Blue Hen 17 & 43 Award. We work hard every day to inspire others to care for our waters. I am grateful for this recognition,” co-founder and CEO Sandra Burton. “As we continue our innovative work improving stormwater quality using solar power, the recognition from the University of Delaware for our innovative efforts goes a long way in strengthening our brand. We appreciate being part of this distinguished class of entrepreneurs.” Burton is a University of Delaware MBA alumni of the Class of ‘06.

Do well by doing good. We believe this quote captures our mission with PondHawk.”

About the Blue Hen 17&43 Awards

The Blue Hen 17&43 Awards build on the University of Delaware's long tradition of leadership, innovation, and entrepreneurship that began when the university was founded in 1743. It honors promising new ventures and growing companies founded or led by our students and alumni. For the past five years, the Blue Hen 17&43 Awards have brought recognition and accolades to established and up-and-coming businesses. This project is a collaboration of UD's Horn Entrepreneurship and Alfred Lerner College of Business & Economics.
