Leaders in our government play an important role in safeguarding the economic security of our country, which as Judge Webster emphasized in his acceptance speech before the ceremony's audience, "America's Economic Security is our number one National Security issue today and for the foreseeable future."

The NESAs is proud to have established these awards recognizing individuals who have distinguished themselves as leaders and who demonstrated a number of the leadership traits Judge Webster has established as a standard for others to follow. Each nominating committee had a detailed guide and rigorous process to follow in selecting the honoree for their respective categories.

The NESAs is proud to have the National Defense University; the National Intelligence University; the International Association of Chiefs of Police; the American Bar Association's Standing Committee on Law and National Security; and the Homeland Security Expert's Group as prestigious partners for the various categories of the William H. Webster Profiles in Leadership Awards. Their involvement elevates these leadership awards to a level that has not been previously achieved and makes these awards even more special to the honorees.

The NESAs would like to thank our outstanding sponsors: The Boeing Company, General Dynamics, Lockheed Martin, and Northrop Grumman. We would also like to thank the other generous donors who have helped to make this awards ceremony and the work of the NESAs possible.

Last, but not least, the NESAs is indebted to the incredible group of luminaries who have volunteered their time and efforts to the organizing committee and various nominating committees for this awards program.
