The 2022 Global Citizen Award recognizes Waddington's commitment to PCFR's mission of building enduring international connections that foster cooperation and understanding and increasing Arizona's global prominence. Past recipients include ASU's President Michael Crow and former Honorary Consul of Canada to Arizona, Glenn Williamson.

“Tina is a steward for scaling businesses and connecting talent with jobs that are rewarding for both employers and individuals,” said Mayor Kate Gallego. “Through her tireless and selfless commitment to the Phoenix community, we enjoy increased international investment and better dialogue in a changing global environment. I am pleased to congratulate Tina on recognition as this year's Global Citizen.”

Commenting on her award, Waddington says, “Through effective international cooperation and collaboration, we can ensure Phoenix takes its place among the world's leading global cities. I am honored to accept this award.”

“PCFR is proud of Tina's dedication to increasing Arizona's international standing and her steadfast work to increase international connections and bring excellent programs to Phoenix”. It's a well deserved honor for her to receive the 2022 Global Citizen Award.” said Claire Sechler Merkel, PCFR, President.

About the City of Phoenix Global Citizen Award:
