This time Explain Ninja designers were happy to produce a high-quality video presentation explaining what Onomy Protocol does, its key goals, its products, and how it all works.

We wanted to show an original guy, a bit of a geek, with whom the viewer could associate. It was important to us that the character was flexible for the frame-by-frame type of animation.”

the Team

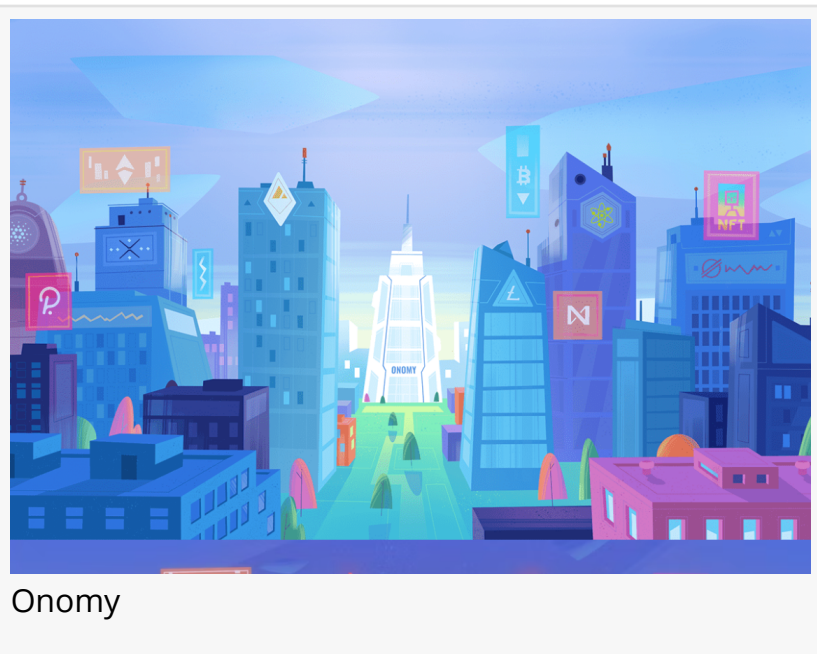

Onomy Protocol is an upcoming blockchain project looking to become a decentralized reserve bank by providing the infrastructure to migrate the world’s centralized financial market into a decentralized finance framework.

Originally they needed to show the story around the character who is just starting to discover the amazing world of crypto and explain complex things in a simple way.

“We wanted to show an original guy, a bit of a geek, with whom the viewer could associate. It was important to us that the character was flexible for the frame-by-frame type of animation.” – admits the Team

The video explainer is another great example of a corporate character video production and an awesome video storytelling sample deliberately created by a team of expert video for fintech makers with years of successful practice both on the Polish and international markets.

Explain Ninja is already known for profound cases for crypto/blockchain projects and many other industries. They have recently closely collaborated with Armanino, the global leader in digital asset solutions and the go-to accounting and consulting firm for crypto-native companies. They created an animation video that helped illustrate how the company's new solutions work. The explainer video for Armanino managed to bring another award to the team after they released their animated video made for the crypto native solution.

Outgrown to be one of the most reputable and trusted teams in the animated design realm, Explain Ninja also remains the most talented one among the top-notch animation studios both in Poland and overseas.
