UNITED STATES, October 25, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- After many months of hard work and dedication, Electronic Team, Inc, Developers of Commander One and many more helpful and reliable software solutions, today announces the launch of their new blog page with research and reviews of FTP clients in 2022.

The launch of the new research is a part of the company's mission to deliver excellent product development, top-notch client support, and solution search to its clients.

"A new research was overdue," said the company spokesperson. "The new article will help ensure that our clients achieve exceptional business growth in terms of data safety and tech aid."

Electronic Team, Inc also announces the release of new features in their Software, Commander One. These include "Amazon IAM support" and "the ability to configure used Finder Extensions." The Software is also improved upon so it can efficiently:

- Work with pCloud, SFTP, and Amazon S3.
- Create a public HTTP link on Amazon S3 connections
- Connect to Amazon S3 using MFA

The team has also analyzed FTP clients for different operating systems and industries.

According to the team's representative, "We at Electronic Team, Inc are confident in the Software's ability to deliver fast and secure FTP connection for Mac. It also works with cloud services and is a handy file manager."

These improvements and additions ensure additional protection to online connections and establish encrypted file transfer between remote servers/cloud computing services and the user's Mac. Thanks to the encryption feature, users are guaranteed to have safe and secure work.

Electronic Team, Inc has invited everyone to explore the new research article and the new improvements to its Software. For more information, visit <https://ftp-mac.com>.
