Colin Yurcisin, CEO of Leveraged Mining, A DotCom Magazine Exclusive Interview

Bitcoin runs on a decentralized computer network or distributed ledger that tracks transactions in the cryptocurrency. When computers on the network verify and process transactions, new bitcoins are created, or mined. These networked computers, or miners, process the transaction in exchange for a payment in Bitcoin. Bitcoin mining is the process by which new bitcoins are entered into circulation. It is also the way the network confirms new transactions and is a critical component of the blockchain ledger's maintenance and development. "Mining" is performed using sophisticated hardware that solves an extremely complex computational math problem. The first computer to find the solution to the problem receives the next block of bitcoins and the process begins again.

Colin Yurcisin and the team at Leveraged Mining have put together a compelling offering for those people interested in participating in mining of Bitcoin. An intriguing interview with one of the leaders in the space.
