Ed Direction's team focuses on maximizing student learning by partnering with educators to implement customized solutions that address the root causes of underperformance. The firm’s school transformation approach is centered around continuous improvement and focuses on developing proficiency in four domains: leadership, instruction, collaboration, and culture. The Ed Direction team is made up of former teachers; administrators; and district, state, and federal leaders with deep expertise in change management, human behavior motivation, research-based practices, and the science of learning.

"Combining Ed Direction's team of educational experts with MGT allows us to further our social impact mission to help students and teachers develop and grow to their fullest potential," said Dr. Trent Kaufman, Ed Direction CEO. Allison Miller, Senior Vice President and co-leader of Ed Direction added, "Together, we can help our partners maximize performance and realize extraordinary results nationwide."
