West Coast Ag's latest acquisition gives it a competitive advantage in the agricultural industry. PureCrop1 is well-respected in the marketplace and already has a solid online presence. This acquisition should help WCA grow its presence in the agriculture industry. WCA's VP elaborates, "In the last few years of growing the PureCrop1 brand, it had really taken off, and a loyal fanbase had flourished. To know that would no longer be the case was heartbreaking. Fortunately, Raquel brought in some of the old core team and formed West Coast Ag. When we found out we could buy the PureCrop1 brand -- it almost felt like coming

Chris Hale of West Coast Ag Products states, "Having the PureCrop1 brand is incredible. We are excited to begin offering PureCrop1. This product speaks to the core of what we believe here at West Coast Ag Products. We believe in providing farmers and consumers with forward-thinking, sustainable solutions for an increasingly uncertain growing environment."

Deeply committed to finding innovative ways for farmers to continue to thrive in changing and uncertain times, WCA proves its groundbreaking nanotechnology is part of that solution. Chris Hale adds, "Creating a sustainable future for agriculture is something we can all benefit from -- we take that to heart here at West Coast Ag Products, which influences everything we do."

But for the team, it goes beyond farms; it also includes making their nanotechnology available in products that are safe to use at home. In addition, WCA takes pride in using recycled plastics and keeping production here in the United States, ensuring they avoid shipping delays and product shortages. Founder Raquel Hale includes, "Keeping things local has always been a part of who we are at West Coast Ag Products -- manufacturing and bottling everything right here in California. We take pride in our hands-on approach to keeping things domestically sourced, which reduces our risk of shortages and keeps business in our community."

The future of West Coast Ag Products is bright, and they are excited to be serving their customers and communities. With the PureCrop1 brand acquisition, WCA will launch a campaign addressing PureCrop1's community questions and future needs.

West Coast Ag Products is excited to bring the next wave of innovative products to your home and local farm. Chris says, "Change can start as a small seed of an idea, but if nurtured, that idea can grow strong roots and lead to foundational change. We want to be the ones sewing those seeds and cultivating them into a more sustainable future for us all."
