

Almond Extract Market is Expected to Boom in Coming Years by 2029

Surge in use of almond extract by the food & beverage industry as a flavoring agent and high demand from hotels & restaurants, bakeries & confectionaries.

PORTLAND, OR, US, October 27, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Almond Extract is a concentrated condensed liquid that is extracted from almond oil combining with ethyl, and is used as a flavoring agent in the food & beverage industry. Ethyl alcohol in almond extract helps to create a stable flavoring agent that lasts for a longer period. As categorized by the U.S. Food & Drug Administration, almond is distinguished as “pure extract” and “natural extract.” The major difference between the extracts is pure almond extract is made from bitter almonds, whereas natural almond extract is made from caccia bark. Almond extract is widely applicable across bakeries and confectionaries in baking almond-flavored cookies and adding almond flavor to cakes and pastries. In addition, almond extracts are widely used by the cosmetic industry, as almonds provide nutrients to the hair and it has high moisturizing properties.

COVID-19 Scenario Analysis

The outbreak of COVID-19 has negatively impacted the hospitality & restaurant sector, as restrictions were imposed on the movement of people, which has indirectly hit the demand for almond extract from the hotel sector. However, rise in demand for packaged food & beverages has increased the demand for almond extract from food processing units.

Manufacturers have been facing problems in getting labor supply and transportation of raw materials, but with a partial list of restrictions for food & staples, the industry is ready to boost for new highs.

Top Impacting Factors: Market Scenario Analysis, Trends, Drivers, and Impact Analysis

Surge in use of almond extract by the food & beverage industry as a flavoring agent and high demand from hotels & restaurants, bakeries & confectionaries for added flavors in cookies & cakes boost the demand for almond extract. Moreover, the use of almond extract by the cosmetic industry due to its moisturizing properties, hair & skincare benefits, and wide use of the almond extract to flavor sweet dishes & desserts are the factors driving the global almond extract market. However, allergies caused by almonds and high prices of almonds & its extraction are the major constraints of the market. Conversely, innovation by market leaders is related to research on improved varieties of almond with lesser perishability and low-cost extraction process.
