Before the COVID-19 pandemic, hand cream was considered as a luxury or premium hand care product. The need for soft hands existed before this pandemic, but was majorly among the niche segment consumers. However, now this product category is moving to the essential space. The current scenario has brought the attention of consumers toward moisturizing hands after hand washing & sanitization and to maintain hygiene. This is attributable to the fact that the washing of hands daily leaves hand rough, dry and stretched. This in turn has increased the demand for hand cream in the market during this pandemic ultimately contributing in fueling the growth of hand cream market.

The global hand cream market analysis is segmented into product type, demographics, age group, distribution channel, and region. By product type, the hand cream market is classified into repair hand cream, anti-aging hand cream, whitening hand cream, overnight cream, and Others. Furthermore, by sales channel, the e-commerce segment is anticipated to be the fastest-growing segment, in terms of value sales, during the hand cream market forecast period, owing to the rise in use of online platforms or e-commerce for purchase of hand cream among customers. This is attributed to easy availability of different brands, designs, and types of hand cream available through online platforms. Moreover, online store has time-saving features and the facility of home delivery, which made consumers incline toward online stores. In addition, owing to the COVID-19 pandemic, consumers have restrained themselves to go outside their homes and in crowded places such as supermarkets and hypermarket. This has increased the distribution of hand cream through online stores in terms of value sales.
