-- Memphian Anthony "Amp" Elmore has perhaps the most unique and dynamic experience in relationship to Kenya than any African/American in Kenya's history. The city of Memphis honored Kenya in 1989, whereas Elmore not only hosted the Kenyans at his home, a Kenyan by the name of Tom Mwangi who worked in the Kenya film industry was stranded in Memphis and Elmore supported Mwangi, whereas they became brothers. After six months of living with Elmore Mwangi returned to Kenya and promised that he would get Elmore's Memphis made 1988 film release titled "The Contemporary Gladiator" played in Kenya. In 1990 while uneventful in Kenya, Elmore made history via becoming not only the 1st Black Independent filmmaker to premier A movie in Africa, Elmore's film is the 1st Kickboxing film made in American film history. Elmore not only received a "Hero's Welcome in Kenya," Elmore met Kenya President Daniel Arap Moi who named Elmore an African/Ambassador.

Elmore encountered a "spiritual awakening" in Kenya, whereas Elmore notes that African Ancestors asked him to bring African/Americans home to Africa. Elmore dedicated his life to bringing Black Americans back home to Africa. (See 1994 Commercial). Elmore brought African/American groups to Kenya for over a decade. Elmore created the 1st video in Kenya's

Elmore married a Kenya woman in 1995 whereas, while they are no longer married together they have a 24 year old son named Anthony "Amp" Elmore Jr. Elmore met 6 of the newly elected Governors of Kenya in 2013. Most importantly was Elmore's visit with the late "Sarah Obama" the Grandmother of President Barack Obama Jr. Sarah Obama told Elmore that she was also his grandmother. Most importantly Elmore a filmmaker captured his story of Sarah Obama whereas Elmore was the 1st person to film the New House that President Obama built for Grandmama Sarah Obama. Dr. King: African Freedom Dinner for Tom Mboya 1959

Since first visiting Kenya in 1990 Elmore has made it his "Life's Mission" to bring Africans and African/Americans together. Elmore has worked decades fighting not only White on Black Racism, but Elmore has fought Black on Black Racism, Black on African Racism and African on African Racism. Elmore explains that Memphis 1st Elected African/American Mayor Dr. Willie Herenton hated Africa. Memphis Mayor Herenton wanted nothing to do with Africa. Elmore notes that he met Kenya Ambassadors who hate Black Americans.

One of Elmore biggest fights has been getting Kenya to honor one of its Founding father's Tom Mboya. The Tom Mboya story is described best in the 1982 book by Davide Goldsworthy titled "Tom Mboya The Man Kenya Wanted to Forget." Elmore has been fighting the system of Black on Black discrimination for over a decades. Elmore's greatest supporter has been White Jewish Memphis Congressman Steve Cohen. Black Memphis Mayor Herenton told Elmore that he was not about to associate with Africa , Mayor Herenton told Elmore "You Got Your Boy Steve Cohen."

Congressman Cohen arranged for Elmore to meet African/Ambassador whereas in 2009 Kenya Ambassador Peter Ogego supported Elmore, however Kenya's Ambassador Elkanah Odembo in a meeting with Elmore and Congressman Cohen, Kenya Ambassador Odembo told Congressman Cohen that Kenya wanted nothing to do with Elmore. Kenya Ambassador Odembo came to Memphis and he did not honor the legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King. Kenya Ambassador Robinson Njeru Githae for years would not answer letters Congressman Cohen sent on Elmore's behalf.

Ryan Coogler is the writer of the Black Panther movie and Hannah Beachler is the Academy Award winning production designer of both the Black Panther movie & Wakanda Forever movie They both visited Africa & researched ways to produce elegant & positive African designs.

Two Kenyans, Richard Kiptoo and Aggrey Asava read about Elmore's story and they made a visit to Memphis and they all traveled to Kenya support Elmore's planned called the "Safari Initiative." The meeting landed the support of Kenya's Kisumu Governor Professor Peter Nyong'o who visited Memphis in 2019. While Governor Nyong'o is unknown in America he is the father of Academy Award winner and star of the Black Panther movie "Lupita Nyong'o."

Professor Nyong'o who obtained a PHD from the University of Chicago in 1977 noted that he had learned more in a few weeks in Memphis than he had learned via his many years of coming to America. What Governor Nyong'o found in Memphis was the "Africans in America." What is unknown and who is untold in America is the "Africans in America." The story was best told by the movie "Roots" whereas "Kunta Kinte" whereas his African roots was beaten out of him.

Elmore is fighting to build "A Cultural Pathway" in Kenya" whereas "Africans can work with African/Americans." Just as 36 year old writer/director of the Black Panther Movie Ryan Coogler created the Black Panther about "Africa's Wakanda" the Movie has grossed 1.3 billion worldwide. Elmore want to ask Kenya President Dr. William Ruto to "Officially" open a Cultural Pathway in Kenya for African/Americans. Elmore visions "The World Largest African and African/American Education and Cultural Center in Kenya" based on the theme and concepts of "African Futurism"

African futurism is a cultural aesthetic and philosophy of science that centers on the fusion of African culture, history, mythology, point of view, with technology based in Africa and not limiting to the diaspora. President Barack Obama Jr, Dr. Martin Luther King, Black revolutionary leader
