NEW YORK CITY, NEW YORK, UNITED STATES, November 2, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The global composite cylinder market is expected to grow due to a significant increase in the demand for transport storage containers for liquid petroleum gases (LPG) or compressed natural gas (CNG), widespread adoption of composite cylinders across various end-use industries like transportation, aerospace, defense, construction & infrastructure, as well as a rise in the demand for lightweight storage solutions. However, the availability of alternative products is likely to limit the market's growth. Composite cylinders with remarkable benefits like being 100% recyclable and having a high resistance to UV will create enormous opportunities for the industry.
