Hospitals recommend the adoption of ambulatory EHR approval driving the market growth: By end user, the hospital segment accounts for the largest market share of the ambulatory EHR market during the forecast period. This is mainly attributed to rising patient emphasis on timely and effective treatment and the rising number of diagnostic and surgical procedures carried out in hospitals. For instance, the HealthIT.gov report states that, as of 2019, about three-quarters of office-based physicians (72%) and nearly all non-federal acute care hospitals (96%) had adopted a certified EHR in 2019. Such factors account for the maximum share of the hospital segment, ultimately driving the overall market growth during the forecast period.
