Food insecurity can impact the health and well-being of students as well as their academic performance. Excelsior staff are donating items such as granola bars, breakfast bars, fruit snacks, bottled water, and other snacks, and distributing them to schools for teachers to hand out in their classrooms as needed.

"Staff at Excelsior have donated generously as we start this initiative," said Zachary Patterson, chair of the community engagement group at Excelsior. "We are proud to support students of all ages and have had a wonderful response from the schools and teachers."

Excelsior University is an accredited, not-for-profit online institution focused on helping adults complete their degrees and advance their careers.
