Pharmaceutical Drug Delivery Market Dynamics

One of the major drivers of the Pharmaceutical Drug Delivery Market is the shift in demand of patients for more advanced systems of delivery for better efficiency of the medication. There has also been an increase in self-administered devices that are increasing the demand for Pharmaceutical Drug Delivery Market. Advancements in the field are offering benefits such as needle-free injections, regulated doses and flexibility. These innovations also helped doctors to focus on drug administration with greater accuracy, especially in people ridden with chronic pain. These factors have shifted the preference of patients as well as doctors towards more sophisticated and novel drug administering methods, increasing growth in the Pharmaceutical Drug Delivery Market.

The increased incidence of chronic diseases such as asthma, cancer, and diabetes has resulted in demand for Pharmaceutical Drug Delivery Market. The geriatric population has been increasing globally. They are also the ones that are most vulnerable to such chronic illnesses. These two factors coupled together are likely to boost demand for the Pharmaceutical Drug Delivery Market.

A major restraint of the Pharmaceutical Drug Delivery Market is the possibility of NSIs (Needlestick Injuries). These are injuries caused in intravenous systems by needles such as hypodermic needs and blood collection needles. Studies suggest that almost 75 percent of NSIs are not even recorded in developing countries. The daunting prevalence of such NSIs poses a risk of transmission of blood-borne pathogens.

There also exists pricing pressure from the public and private players coupled with initiatives by the government that is placing excessive pressure on the producers for a price reduction. This trend is witnessed in developing and developed countries and is expected to be a barrier to the growth in the Pharmaceutical Drug Delivery Market.

Pharmaceutical Drug Delivery Market Regional Insights

North America held the highest market share in 2021 at 45.8 percent. The growth in the market is attributed to several factors such as government initiatives and support in the form of schemes and policies for the growth of the market. Research and development in the region is also boosting growth in the market. The existence of major players is also one of the factors driving the market. Awareness about mental health has brought to light the number of cases related to mental disorders mainly hypertension. This is one of the reasons for the growth of the regional Pharmaceutical Drug Delivery Market.

The second major share in the Pharmaceutical Drug Delivery Market was dominated by Europe in 2021. Factors for growth in the area include the advancements happening in the field and the presence of major pharmaceutical companies in the region. The European region has been suffering from chronic illnesses such as cancer and diabetes which increases the demand for Pharmaceutical Drug Delivery Market. The European market is expected to witness steady growth for the forecast period.
