result of dynamic weighting. The effective use of semantic analysis, which enables the model to precisely comprehend language structure within a context and enables it to construct contents by employing words in diverse contexts, is another factor contributing to the increased favour for the GPT-3 model over other transformers. One of the main factors significantly driving the revenue growth of the market is the rising demand for GPT-3 from marketers, Search Engine Optimization (SEO) specialists, and content creators. This is due to the variety of benefits it offers, including code generation, question answering, text summarization, language translation, search engines, text classification, and others.

Some Key Highlights From the Report

Due to the growing number of internet users and efficient social media marketing, content development accounted for a sizeable portion of revenue in 2021. High demand for content is being generated by an increase in the amount of digital marketing campaigns used for promotional activities, advertising, email marketing, blogs, and websites.

In 2021, the design segment is anticipated to increase steadily. The User Interface (UI) of apps and websites may now be designed using words rather than code thanks to GPT-3. For instance, a plugin based on Figma was created using the features of GPT-3 Designer. Designer created a working prototype with using plain text. One of the elements anticipated to propel the segment's revenue growth is the availability of generative design, which enables engineers and designers to add limitations into the GPT-3 model.

The greatest revenue CAGR is anticipated in North America throughout the projection period due to the region's rapid adoption of automation and technological developments. The region's income growth is being greatly aided by the presence of large corporations, creative start-ups, and an increase in high-value investments. GPT-3 was created by San Francisco-based OpenAI, a startup that conducts AI research. Microsoft released an invitation for corporate developers to use Azure, a cloud-based AI model for Natural Language Processing, on May 25, 2022. (NLP). Microsoft has previously spent USD 1 billion in OpenAI for both development and commercialization of GPT-3.

Throughout the projected period, the European market is anticipated to post a consistent CAGR in terms of revenue. Due to the growing need for automation and productivity tools and the resulting increase in GPT-3 model implementation, which is one of the major reasons driving the market's revenue development in the area, numerous businesses and start-ups are investing and collaborating. In order to boost productivity and modernise the way business professionals conduct their work, such as the development of presentations, business proposals, and project plans, AskBrian, one of the leading machine learning start-ups in Germany, launched a new AI technology for the creation of high-quality content for its AI assistant, Brian, on June 1, 2022.
