Biotechnology can help the fossil fuel industry by supporting the production of fossil fuels and upgrading fuels, as well as bioremediation of water, soil, and air and controlling microbiologically influenced corrosion.

"I am intrigued by emerging biotechnology companies that can make a significant impact on our future," Rewcastle stated. "Company analysis differs in the category of earnings, with many emerging biotech companies having zero or negative income, I stay focused on the facts."

can lower their business risk, increase business value, and find ways to reduce costs. They also provide insight into future earnings.

David Rewcastle has received numerous accolades for stock picking returns and earnings estimate accuracy. David won the Wall Street Journal's 'Best On The Street' award for portfolio performance in the Oilfield Services Sector, a top-ranked stock picker for the Gas Utility Sector, and the #3 analyst/stockpicker in the US Gas Utility sector.

Biotechnology is leading the charge in the development of innovative therapies to address many unmet medical needs. Biotechnology companies tend to focus on a limited number of compounds in a particular therapeutic area. This means that they lack the necessary resources, drug development expertise, or therapeutic expertise to bring new therapies to market. Biotechnology companies are often more comfortable with little to no positive earnings.

Biotechnology companies need to be able to communicate effectively with VC firms as well as clinical research experts in order to demonstrate the value of their scientific discoveries. Biotechnology companies can benefit greatly from establishing relationships with VC firms through a CRO partnership.

The addition of David Rewcastle to the BioTech sector enables investors the ability to receive analysis from an established resource. His background includes experience as the Senior Research Analyst at RHK/Source Capital Group, an analyst at Divine Capital Markets, Capstone Investments, Argus Research, and September Group Research Partners; a sovereign risk & ratings associate analyst at Fitch Ratings/Thomson Bankwatch; and a field analyst at Schlumberger's Seismic Exploration Group.
