

Skillable Recognized by Training Industry in their 2022 Top IT Training Companies Watch List

This is the third consecutive year Skillable has been recognized for their efforts in IT Training and is the tenth award from Training Industry since May 2020.

ORLANDO, FLORIDA, USA, November 8, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Skillable is proud to be included on Training Industry's 2022 Top IT & Technical Training Companies Watch List. This is the third consecutive year Skillable has been recognized for their efforts in IT Training and is the tenth award from Training Industry since May 2020.

Validating skills through hands-on experiences is key to development and we are bringing our innovative approach to organizations that want to assess and validate their learners in a meaningful way."

Chris McCarthy, CEO of Skillable

Companies are selected for this recognition based on the quality of their program and service offerings, innovation and impact in the IT and technical training market, client and customer representation and business performance and growth.

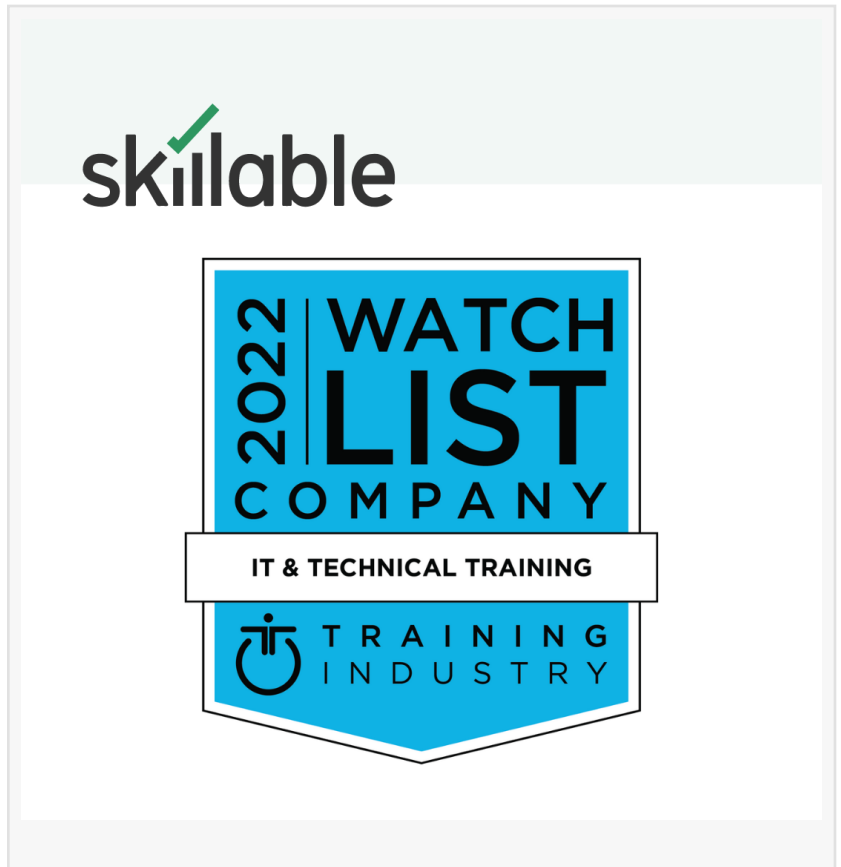

"The companies chosen for our IT & Technical Training Watch List offer a breadth of emerging courses on topics and skill sets such as cloud computing, programming and data science, with many different modalities to meet organizations' IT training needs," said Tom Whelan, Director of Corporate Research at Training Industry, Inc. "With an influx of leading-edge content to anticipate and respond to market demands, these organizations are constantly expanding their portfolios to ensure learners receive the most updated IT and technical training needed for success."

Skillable is in a unique position amongst fellow award recipients in that it offers both the platform for building IT training labs as well as a catalog of more than 1,000 hands-on labs that develop and assess skills across numerous topics and technologies.

Several of Skillable's clients were also recognized in the Top 20 and Watch List, speaking to the power and versatility of Skillable's platform and its ability to provide a hands-on element to learning.

“Receiving this recognition alongside our customers proves we’re delivering on our mission to increase opportunities through skilling,” says Chris McCarthy, Chief Executive Officer of Skillable. “We know that validating skills through hands-on experiences is key to personal, team and organizational development and we are focused on bringing our innovative approach to organizations that want to assess and validate their learners' outcomes in a meaningful way.”
