Dead, dying or damaged trees that are close to your home can cause massive damage to your home. An unhealthy tree can be knocked over in a storm or if the root gives way. Tree removal should be done by experienced professionals to ensure that the tree is removed safely. The entire root structure, even the roots underground, are taken out. If you have noticed that some of your trees don't look healthy, contact Tomorrow's Trees. Our tree removal experts will assess the tree and remove it if necessary. The visible signs that one or more of your trees need to be taken down include:

No Leaves and No Growth

Bare branches on a tree are not normal unless it's winter time and the tree is dormant. Any other time of the year if the branches of the tree are bare and have no leaves or signs of living foliage that tree probably needs to come down before the branches fall off. Call the tree removal experts at Tomorrow's Trees. They can assess the tree and see if needs to be taken down so that the branches don't fall on your vehicle or other property.

Damage to The Roots

If the roots of the tree are damaged, the tree is probably dead, or dying, and needs to be removed. Tree roots that are above the ground quite commonly are damaged by rodents, large animals like deer, or pests. Tree roots also can be damaged by lawnmowers or trimmers. Check the roots of the tree carefully and if you notice chunks missing from the roots, cracks or discoloration in the roots. If the roots are not strongly anchored in the soil, that tree needs to be taken down by tree specialists.

The Tree Seems Unsteady

All trees will blow a bit in the wind, especially during storms. However, if you see a tree on your property that leans to one side or dips to a dangerous angle in the wind, that tree is dead. Don't wait to call
