Headquartered in Las Vegas, Nevada, VOMG provides value-based primary care services to its local communities, serving over 20,000 patients, including approximately 6,000 Medicare members. Through this transaction, ApolloMed will deploy its value-based care management and operational platform to empower VOMG's employed providers to deliver best-in-class clinical outcomes while improving the healthcare experience for its patients. The acquisition also marks ApolloMed's entry into operating primary care clinics in both Nevada and Texas, and expands ApolloMed's membership across VOMG's nine centers.

Brandon Sim, Co-CEO of ApolloMed, stated, "We are excited to welcome Valley Oaks Medical Group to the ApolloMed family, and look forward to continuing to expand and improve value-based healthcare experiences for new and existing patients in Las Vegas, Houston, and Fort Worth. Our partnership will allow us to bring our unique care model to key new geographic markets, and we look forward to continuing to deliver equitable and high-quality healthcare to underserved populations with high rates of chronic illness in those communities."

Guru Charan, CEO of Valley Oaks Medical Group, added, "We believe the diverse populations VOMG serves will greatly benefit from the industry-leading services that ApolloMed provides, made possible by its scale, care delivery infrastructure, and care management systems. As a leader in value-based care, ApolloMed is well equipped to help us continue our legacy of providing superior care for patients. We are energized by the months and years to come as we join the ApolloMed family."

VOMG selected EAMC to serve as its exclusive advisor in the transaction. "I am pleased we had the Encore AMC team as our advisor owing to their experience in M&A and guidance, which ensured every aspect of this transaction was handled effectively," commented VOMG's founder and CEO.

Othon Herrera, EAMC's Managing Director, added, "We were proud to work with Guru Charan in this primary care practice transaction. Guru and his team have built a successful primary care practice and I expect they and ApolloMed will do great things in this new partnership."
