As the novel coronavirus (COVID-19) crisis takes over the world, we are continuously tracking the changes in the markets, as well as the purchase behaviours of the consumers globally and our estimates about the latest market trends and forecasts are being done after considering the impact of this pandemic.

Market Trends:

The global market is majorly driven by the growing popularity of ethnic cuisines. In line with this, numerous food manufacturers are replacing traditional spices with oleoresins as they provide many advantages over herbs and spices. Furthermore, the increasing processed food and beverage consumption is positively influencing the market. Apart from this, the rising trend of using natural flavors in processed food and a considerable rise in the number of quick-service restaurants are catalyzing the product demand. Moreover, the growing awareness regarding the side effects of synthetic flavors and the health benefits of phytomedicines and herbal extracts are significantly contributing to the market growth. Besides this, the augmenting consumption of organic food and beverages has bolstered the demand for organic spices, which, in turn, is likely to create ample growth opportunities for organic oleoresins in food and beverage applications. Additionally, varied pharmaceutical industry players are utilizing the therapeutic properties of oleoresins to expand their product portfolio, which is facilitating the product uptake.
