Push-to-talk over cellular (PoC) technology is changing the way savvy security organizations communicate.”

George Karonis

PeakPTT® provides cutting-edge 2-way radios that are transforming the way businesses communicate. As easy to operate as a walkie-talkie, Peak's push-to-talk radios are rugged, work Nationwide, highly affordable and provide a high return on investment for businesses looking to supercharge their communications.

The Close Protection Conference is the largest and most influential global protective security industry event. The Close Protection Conference & Executive Protection Training is hosted by the International Protective Security Board (IPSB), the only non-profit EP-centric board with the mission of elevating protection professionals' standards, opportunities, and industry insights, which is committed to delivering a unique educational and networking experience for seasoned service providers, new and aspiring Executive Protection professionals, and for representatives of all industry sectors.

PeakPTT®'s product offering provides great value and benefits for professionals in the Executive/Close Protection and Security industries.

"Push-to-talk over cellular (PoC) technology is changing the way savvy security organizations communicate. This technology provides you with the means to send messages and alerts to large groups of people over great distances, thanks to a nationwide 4G LTE network", explained George Karonis, CEO of PeakPTT®. "Our company provides a reliable, cost-effective solution that give businesses instant always-on communication for their teams."
