Amy LaBelle, author

will have made the days leading up to future brides wedding much easier.

With the holidays around the corner, many couples get engaged during the last two weeks of the year and Amy's new book will offer a roadmap of how to plan a wine-themed wedding from the colors and decor to the food and drinks to the flowers and invitations. It's a compliment to her New England Winery that she has owned for over 10 years. She's also one of the few award-winning female wine makers in the world. Grapes for her wines come from Central California throughout the San Joaquin Valley and from vineyards in Yakima, Washington and New York's Finger Lakes Region, in addition to her own vineyards.

What's unique about Amy is that not only is she a winemaker but she cooks with wine. Amy teaches classes at her winery that infuse wine with her food and cocktail recipes. Amy can prepare her unique spin on the classic French 75, while pairing it with some delicious savory bites that are sure to please guests.

Wine Weddings outlines that the food and cocktails can reflect the heritage of the couple. This would be everything from the cocktails to the cuisine.

Also, Amy suggests having a signature cocktail upon arrival into the reception to celebrate the nuptials. For example, if the couple will honeymoon in Hawaii, a Mai-Tai would be a great compliment to guests, when accompanied by a sign that tells the story. When it comes to the reception, the menu should reflect something personal to the couple. For example, if the couple is from New England but having their wedding in San Diego, a classic clambake would represent the bride and groom nicely.
