What are the growth prospects of the sterilization services industry?

The global sterilization services market size reached a value of US$ 3.36 Billion in 2021. Looking forward, IMARC Group expects the market to reach a value of US$ 4.86 Billion by 2027, exhibiting a CAGR of 6.10% during 2022-2027.

What is Sterilization Services?

Sterilization is the process of removing all types of microorganisms present in the environment. It includes heat, irradiation, high pressure, chemicals, and filtration that kill bacterial spores. Some of the commonly used sterilization methods are steam sterilization, dry heat sterilization, electron beam radiation, and ethylene oxide (ETO). These methods limit further transmission of the microorganisms by killing bacteria, fungi, and viruses to ensure a cleaner environment. Owing to these properties, sterilization services are widely adopted across the pharmaceutical and healthcare industries.

What are the major market drivers in the sterilization services market?

The market is primarily driven by the expanding healthcare industry across the globe. In addition, the rising incidences of hospital-acquired infections (HAIs) due to a lack of sanitation represent another major growth-inducing factor. Moreover, the increasing prevalence of chronic diseases and the rising number of surgical procedures requiring high-intensity infection prevention is contributing to the market growth.

Besides this, the market is further propelled by the sudden outbreak of coronavirus disease (COVID-19) pandemic and consequent concerns regarding virus transmission across commercial and residential spaces.

Furthermore, various technological advancements such as the introduction of low-temperature sterilization systems that enhance instrument capability and the implementation of various government initiatives to ensure a high degree of infection prevention are also creating a favorable market outlook.
