The Beverly Hills Hotel serves as the setting for a fantastic tale written by Susan McCauley and illustrated by Darlee Urbitondo. With love by their sides, Trooper the real-life dog and his best friend, Hollywood agent Andrea Eastman, overcome challenging situations. Susan McCauley is the author of this true story of a dog and his owner. Susan, a prolific writer of books for kids, teens, and adults as well as a screenwriter, fell in love with writing, theater, and film when she was just eight years old.

Andrea Eastman started her career at paramount pictures when she was in her twenties and was responsible for casting The Godfather and Love Story, two of the most popular movies of all time.

She moved to Los Angeles where she was senior VP at International Creative Management. Some of Andrea's clients were Barbra Streisand, Sylvester Stallone, Billy Crystal, Dustin Hoffman, Katharine Ross, Richard Gere, Christopher Plummer, Gabriel Byrne, Chevy Chase, Wes Craven, Marshall Brickman, Stockard Channing, Henry Winkler, Tony Danza, Katie Couric.

Her passion in addition to the entertainment business, is animals. She is an animal activist working with rescue groups worldwide. She got Robert Redford to sign the voter card in 1998 helping to pass prop 6 and end horse slaughter in California.

Andrea and Willie Nelson received a lifetime achievement award from Equine Advocates for horse rescue in 2021. It's the second award she received from Equine Advocates in ten years. Andrea has been raising money for years to save "Premarin foal's". Premarin is made from pregnant mares urine for estrogen. When the babies are born they are sent to slaughter for their meat to China and Europe.
