NEW YORK CITY, NEW YORK, USA,

EINPresswire.com/ -- According to the current analysis of Reports and Data, the Tocotrienol Powders Market was valued at USD 369.1 Million in 2020 and is expected to reach USD 614.9 Million by the year 2028, at a CAGR of 6.5%. Tocotrienol Powders are chemicals in the vitamin E family. Vitamin E is a substance necessary for proper body and brain function. As with the other vitamin E chemicals, there are four types of Tocotrienol Powders found in nature: alpha, beta, gamma, and delta. Tocotrienol Powders occur in the oils of rice bran, palm fruit, barley, and wheat germ. Experts believe that Tocotrienol Powders have many health benefits — some that are more powerful than those found in more common tocopherols. These include increased brain health and functionality, anticancer activity, and cholesterol-lowering properties.

Tocotrienol Powders have gained the attention of clinicians by demonstrating compelling anti-cancer activities in pre-clinical research. The underlying mechanism facilitating this effect has been attributed to the anti-proliferative, anti-angiogenic, pro-apoptotic and immune enhancing nature of T3. Neuroprotective ability conferred by T3 in pre-clinical research has gained momentum and was further explored as a novel approach in humans. Beyond their antioxidative nature, T3, particularly α-T3, were found to induce neuroprotection at nanomolar concentrations. In fact, the circulating plasma T3 were found to be 20 times more than the required dose for neuroprotection.

Tocotrienol Powders aren't commonly found in nature and when they are, they tend to occur at very low levels. However, palm, rice bran, and barley oils contain Tocotrienol Powders, as well as wheat germ and oats.
