than live in infamy!" Similar rallies and boycotts were reported at Tehran's Amir Kabir University and Khajeh Nasir Toosi University.

In Isfahan, activists are reporting that truck drivers in the Shapour district have launched a strike. Truck drivers in Bandar Abbas, southern Iran, were seen continuing their strike for a second consecutive day.

On Saturday protests continued with more strikes by noble merchants and store owners in Zahedan. In Tehran, students at Amir Kabir University were seen boycotting their classes, protesting the arrest of their classmates, and voicing solidarity with the ongoing Iranian revolution against the mullahs' rule.

Similar protest rallies were held at the Pardis Faraby University of Qom, the University of Science and Culture in Tehran, and the Isfahan University of Technology.

regime's lethal crackdown measures.

"The people's solidarity is much more potent than the regime's ability to sow discord and division. The willpower of rebellious protesters to bring down the theocratic regime is much greater than the regime's hasty mobilization to preserve its rule," the NCRI President-elect explained.

The protests in Iran began following the death of Mahsa Amini. Mahsa (Zhina) Amini, a 22-year-old woman from the city of Saqqez in Kurdistan Province, western Iran, who traveled to Tehran with her family, was arrested on Tuesday, September 13, at the entry of Haqqani Highway by the regime's so-called "Guidance Patrol" and transferred to the "Moral Security" agency.

She was brutally beaten by the morality police and died of her wounds in a Tehran hospital on September 16. The event triggered protests that quickly spread across Iran and rekindled the people's desire to overthrow the regime.
