The Business Research Company's "Hopped Malt Extract Market Report 2022" forecasts the hopped malt extract market share to reach a value of $8.38 billion in 2022 at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 12.4%. The Russia-Ukraine war disrupted the chances of global economic recovery from the COVID-19 pandemic, at least in the short term. The war between these two countries has led to economic sanctions on multiple countries, surge in commodity prices, and supply chain disruptions, effecting many markets across the globe. The hopped malt extract market is expected to reach $11.74 billion in 2026 at a CAGR of 8.8%.

Hopped Malt Extract Market Trends

New product innovation is gaining significant popularity in the hopped malt extract market.

Major companies operating in the hopped malt extract sector are focused on introducing new products to sustain their position in the market. For instance, in June 2021, Muntons, a UK-based malt, and malted ingredients manufacturer launched a new range of home-brew kits which are packed with hops and adjuncts, including premium hop pellets for dry-hopping and a hop straining bag. This kit is manufactured by using German beer-making technology which gives an authentic taste to the product. To ensure that the home brewer has the best experience possible while producing 35 pints of beer, the package also comes with a step-by-step instruction manual that is designed specifically for the kit style.

Hopped Malt Extract Market Overview

The hopped malt extract market consists of sales of the hopped malt extract process by entities (organizations, sole traders, and partnerships) that are used for the aromatic and bittering features it can provide to the completed beer. Hopped malt extract refers to a malt extract that is added to eliminate variables from brewers to keep brewing simple. These hops are available in both dried and concentrated forms. That is made by crushing and mashing malted grains.
