returning clientele. Adding to the auspicious year, the firm received two Houston Business Journal Awards: HBJ's FAST 100 List coming in at #14 and HBJ's Largest Houston Area Women-Owned Businesses List at #18, and the Women Presidents Organization's 50 Fastest-Growing Women-Owned/Led Companies of 2022 list at #27. The happy windfalls have inspired OFI President/CEO, Jayne Edison-Davenport to pay it forward.

“My husband, Bobby and I are life-long horse lovers. Six years ago, we met Megan Cardet and learned about her mission, A Place For Peanut.” Edison-Davenport said.

A Place For Peanut is a non-profit sanctuary that rescues equines in kill pens, then rehabilitates them for adoption, education, and equine therapy.

“Since the moment we learned about APFP we've been loyal supporters and OFI is a corporate sponsor. Of course, the Holidays is a wonderful time to support the charity monetarily and spread the word about its mission.” Edison-Davenport added.

A Place For Peanut began with a miniature pony named Peanut. She was discovered in a Texas “kill pen,” a place where owners and breeders dump their unwanted horses. Peanut was separated from her mother, who had been sent to slaughter.

This gruesome death sentence awaits horses who are transported to Mexico and killed for meat consumption. Thankfully, Megan intervened, and Peanut is now thriving alongside her herd mates.

OFI and The Davenports are underwriting the charity's annual Christmas Dinner at the Farm on December 10th, the largest fundraising event for the charity. For more details on the event and to purchase tickets visit Eventbrite <http://bit.ly/3Vh1Xbr>
