i of the World

By successfully carrying out all production stages from raw material to final product, the Turkish textile sector has a privileged position on a global scale with its integrated production power of $90 billion.

The sector which follows global trends follows them very closely, and puts them into practice quickly, owes its trend thinking success to its dynamic infrastructure.

Reducing water consumption from cotton to final product, minimizing energy consumption, zero waste, corporate social responsibility, and reducing carbon footprint are among the most important priorities of the sector.

ITHIB, the roof organization of Turkish textile exports, underlines that it attaches great importance to the "Responsible Production and Consumption" heading of the United Nations Sustainable Development Goal and carries out a very comprehensive study that will reveal the sustainability vision of the industry.
