When it comes to Indian culture and food, Pan Masala is a popular item that has been around for centuries. This traditional snack is made from betel nuts, catechu, lime, cardamom seeds and other spices that are mixed together to create a unique flavor. It is believed to have originated in India during the Mughal era when the Mughal Empire was at its peak. Since then, Pan Masala has become an integral part of Indian life as a chewing tobacco-like substance known for its cooling effect on the mouth. Today, Pan Masala remains one of the most consumed products in India with millions using it daily. Its popularity comes from its ability to aid digestion due to its ingredients like cardamom seeds and ginger powder which help clear airways and relieve stomach discomfort.
