About Cancer Kinship

Cancer Kinship believes that everyone deserves an equal opportunity to survive cancer and thrive after a diagnosis. They also believe that everyone deserves to reach their full health potential, which includes access to cancer care. Cancer Kinship's mission is to empower the cancer community to confidently face the disease through peer mentorship, survivor empowerment & education, community resource navigation and connections, and their newest program, Kinner Beauty Wig Salon, which offers free wigs to those who are unable to afford one.

All programs and services are provided by caring and compassionate volunteers and staff, and are offered to adult men and women diagnosed with all cancer types and stages of disease. Additionally, with cancer survival on the rise, Cancer Kinship is committed to providing survivorship support to help reduce cancer recurrence risks that will ultimately improve long-term health outcomes. Cancer Kinship's long-term vision is a community where anyone affected by cancer – no matter where they stand in their journey – can brave the storm together, confidently, and fearlessly.

Cancer Kinship was founded by Yoli Origel, a 15-year, Stage III breast cancer warrior who lost both her mother and sister to metastatic disease. Yoli served as a patient mentor for Providence St. Joseph Center for Cancer Prevention and Treatment for more than 10 years prior to launching Cancer Kinship in 2018. She is currently serving as co-chair for OC3 (Orange County Cancer Coalition) in partnership with UCI Chao Family Comprehensive Cancer Center. Cancer Kinship operates at the Melinda Hoag Smith Center for Healthy Living, a local nonprofit and community hub powered by Hoag Community Benefit, at The Hive of Anaheim, powered by the Anaheim Community Foundation and the Samueli Family Foundation, and they recently opened their free wig salon called Kinner Beauty inside Phenix Salon Suites in the city of Brea, CA. Online inquiries and appointments for individualized care may be made online.

Cancer Kinship is an IRS registered 501c3 nonprofit organization, Tax ID# 87-4802655. Click here to learn more on how you can get involved and support their critical mission work.
