MIAMI, FLORIDA, UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, December 2, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ --

Together with Tezos and Gushcloud, we hope this endeavor will impact artists looking to access technology for their work and look forward to building future collaborations within the Tezos ecosystem"

Cordell Broadus

Gushcloud International, a global technology driven creator and media company, brokered a partnership between its talent Cordell Broadus (top crypto and Web3 entrepreneur and owner of Champ Medici Bored Ape NFT) and The Tezos Foundation to launch a USD1 Million philanthropic effort called the Champ Medici Arts Fund.

The Fund aims to support emerging artists across the globe looking to build and create works on Tezos, an energy-efficient blockchain, by providing monetary grants and onboarding to the Tezos community. Tezos prides itself as a diverse, global network of artists, collectors and creators looking to explore NFTs as a new medium for creative expression.

Its first-ever beneficiary is the Rush Philanthropic Arts Foundation, the non-profit co-founded by visual artist Danny Simmons, music mogul Russell Simmons, and Joseph "Rev. Run" Simmons of legendary hip hop group Run-DMC.

As a tribute, The Champ Medici Arts Fund will host an exclusive VIP event on December 3 at Art Basel Miami Beach to honor Rush Philanthropic Arts Foundation and Danny Simmons for their work over the past 30 years of providing support for emerging Black artists and access to the arts for underrepresented communities.

"I am excited to announce this partnership with The Tezos Foundation that will bring new artists to Tezos, one of the world's most advanced and artist-friendly blockchains. I have been an advocate for blockchain technology since its early stages and believe it's here to stay. My mission has always been to support up-and-coming artists and provide access to innovative forms of artistic expression especially for minority groups. The Champ Medici Arts Fund was founded as a result of this goal. Together with Gushcloud, we hope this endeavor will impact artists looking to access technology for their work and look forward to building future collaborations within the Tezos ecosystem," says Cordell Broadus aka Champ Medici.

For their part, Mason Edwards, Chief Commercial Officer of the Tezos Foundation adds, "The Tezos ecosystem is known for its incredible artists who are pushing the boundaries of digital art. I'm honored that Champ Medici has selected Tezos for this initiative and will be joining this flourishing community of creative talent. It's fantastic that Rush Arts will be named as its first beneficiary. My hope is that this empowers a whole new wave of up-and-coming artists, from a diverse range of backgrounds, to start their Web3 journeys."

Cordell Broadus (Champ Medici) together with Althea Lim, Co-Founder and CEO of Gushcloud International

A multi-faceted business entrepreneur and son of music icon Snoop Dogg, Cordell is widely known throughout the metaverse as his Bored Ape NFT, Champ Medici. Over the years, he has gained recognition for championing crypto currency and Web3 in its early stages, becoming one of the most influential figures at the forefront of the industry and as an avid supporter of the arts. Gushcloud International represents and manages Champ Medici's business interests.

"We at Gushcloud always believe in building sustainable careers for creators and artists. That's why we are proud and happy to be a key figure in this partnership between our talent, Champ Medici and Tezos. We are inspired to collaborate with like-minded groups that aim to provide opportunities for emerging artists, and give them access to funding and networking which are crucial to their success," says Althea Lim, Co-Founder Global CEO of Gushcloud International.

Althea Lim will join other leaders forming the Fund's subcommittee, which also includes Katherine Ng, Managing Director of TZ APAC — the leading Asia-based blockchain adoption entity supporting the Tezos ecosystem.

Meanwhile, the beneficiary Rush Arts was co-founded in New York City in 1995 by siblings Danny,

Russell and Joseph "Rev. Run" Simmons. It is devoted to supporting emerging underrepresented artists with exhibition opportunities as well as providing inner city youth with significant exposure to the arts. Its galleries have featured early career exhibitions of artists like Simone Leigh, Wangechi Mutu, Kehinde Wiley, Mickalene Thomas, Sanford Biggers, Allison Janae Hamilton and many others who are dominating the contemporary art scene today.

"Rush Arts has been around for nearly thirty years and we are pleased to head into a new season to support our artists with the adoption of NFTs, especially since minority urban audiences are often the last to benefit from early adoption of new technologies. By partnering with Champ Medici, his fund and the Tezos ecosystem, we plan to onboard talented emerging Black artists and educate them on how to leverage Web3 to grow their careers," says visual artist and author Danny Simmons, also chairman of the board of Rush Arts.

The Champ Medici Arts Fund will officially launch on January 2, 2023. The fund will begin accepting applications on December 5, 2022. For more information, please visit www.champmedicigroup.io/thearts. To learn more about Gushcloud International, visit www.gushcloud.com.
