

No Internet Game Celebrates Two Years in Business

A replica of Google Chrome's hidden Dinosaur Game has reached a new milestone.

The logo for the No Internet Game, featuring the words "NO INTERNET GAME" in a bold, pixelated, black font with a white outline, set against a light gray background.

UNITED STATES, December 2, 2022

/EINPresswire.com/ -- According to the Small Business Administration \(SBA\), more than half of all businesses fail before reaching their first year in business. But thanks to hard work and dedication, representatives with the No Internet Game announced today that it is celebrating two years in business.

"We consider it an honor to serve our customers the past two years," said Game Kelly Poppy, president and spokesperson for No Internet Game. "We are excited about what the future holds."

As for the No Internet Game itself, Poppy explained that some people may not have known that Google Chrome has a hidden Dinosaur Game that can be played when individuals lose their internet connection.

There is no end to the game. When gamers get to the maximum possible score of 999,999, the game score resets, but the dinosaur keeps running. No Internet Game has had more than 555,000 new users in the last 12 months, according to Poppy.

No Internet Game, also known as No Wi-Fi Game, Dinosaur Game, Dino Game, No Internet Dinosaur Game, T-Rex Game, No Internet Dino, and No Internet Game Dino, was initially code-named "Project Bolan."

This simple but addictive Dinosaur Game was released in 2014, created by Sebastian Gabriel. It was originally built as an Easter Egg, hidden as a built-in browser game in Google Chrome's No Internet connection error page.

The Google Dino Game Easter Egg is an endless runner game that features the famous T-Rex, who has become trapped in the desert. The T-Rex runs and must avoid obstacles as the game speeds up and players progress further. The objective of the No Internet Dinosaur Game is to avoid all obstacles by jumping and ducking and survive for as long as possible.

As to why Google uses a dinosaur, according to Sebastien Gabriel, the prehistoric theme was intentional. The idea of an 'endless runner' as an Easter Egg within the 'you-are-offline' page was born in early 2014. It is a play going back to the 'prehistoric age' when the world had no Wi-Fi.

For more information, please visit <https://nointernetgame.net/blog/>

###

About No Internet Game

No Internet Game is a replica of the Dinosaur Game, which is hidden on Google Chrome's No Internet connection error page. Press the space bar to start the game. Then use the up (↑) and down (↓) arrow keys to control the dinosaur.

Kevin Koepfel
No House Advantage
email us here

This press release can be viewed online at: <https://www.einpresswire.com/article/604385425>

EIN Presswire's priority is source transparency. We do not allow opaque clients, and our editors try to be careful about weeding out false and misleading content. As a user, if you see something we have missed, please do bring it to our attention. Your help is welcome. EIN Presswire, Everyone's Internet News Presswire™, tries to define some of the boundaries that are reasonable in today's world. Please see our Editorial Guidelines for more information.

© 1995-2022 Newsmatics Inc. All Right Reserved.