

Beauty Business Trailblazer Competing in National Breast Cancer Competition to Save the Lives of Dogs

Veronique Munro, CEO Infinity Sun is competing in National Breast Cancer competition and will donate entire cash prize to Sprays for Strays to help dog rescues.

LOS ANGELES, CA, USA, December 5, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Beauty Business and Sunless Tanning industry pioneer, Veronique Munro is competing along side thousands of women around the world in the Fab Over 40 competition. Her incentive for entering the competition was to have the opportunity to win $40,000 to help rescue dogs through the dog rescue nonprofit, Sprays for Strays.

Additionally, Munro is passionate about being able to raise money to support breast cancer early detection, education and support through the fundraising aspect of the contest, but also, having the opportunity to empower spray tanning business owners through the increased visibility of the nonprofit.

Fab Over 40 is an annual competition invites women over the age of 40 from around the world to compete for a 2-page ad feature in New Beauty magazine, a luxurious spa-cation, and a $40,000 cash prize. The winner will also experience a glamorous photoshoot and an exclusive interview for the magazine spread. The winner is chosen through public voting and every vote purchased is a direct donation to DTCare who will then subsequently make a grant to National Breast Cancer Foundation.

When asked what she will do with the cash prize if she wins, Munro stated "I will donate the entire $40,000 to Sprays for Strays nonprofit to grow membership within the spray tanning community to increase fundraisers, volunteers, fosters etc geared entirely to save the lives of more dogs".

Miss Munro has succeeded to the semifinals, which will end on December 8th and if she gets through, she will go on to finals. If you would like to support her in the competition, Click on the following link
