The orthopedic devices industry is expected to grow to $52.78 billion in 2026 at a CAGR of 5.3%.

The increase in the patient pool due to the rising geriatric population globally contributed significantly to the growth

Biodegradable implants are increasingly being used in trauma orthopedic surgeries.

Biodegradable implants are used to replace a missing biological structure, support a damaged biological structure, and enhance the existing bone structure. Biodegradable products such as reabsorbable polymers composed of polyglycolic acid and polylactic acid manufactured in the form of plates, screws, and pins are replacing traditional devices like plates and screws, which are more expensive. Surgeons are preferring biodegradable implants to replace conventional implants, as biodegradable implants can be engineered to provide temporary support for bone fractures; can degrade at a rate matching new tissue formation; can eliminate the need for the second surgery, and are highly useful in fracture fixation in children; and result in less implant-related infections. For instance, Stryker Corporation offers orthobiologics such as bone repair biodegradable products that are used in bone regeneration and bone healing, soft tissue regeneration, and muscle connection to bone.
