Hair serums are often used to repair split ends or tame frizz or flyaways for smoother hairstyles. Hair serum is made up of a combination of various types of oils and other ingredients that have been chosen to provide nourishment and protection for the hair. These ingredients can range from natural oils like jojoba oil and argan oil, to synthetic polymers that give the hair a glossy finish. Depending on the type of serum used, it may also contain essential oils like lavender oil or rosemary oil which add aromatherapy benefits as well as conditioning benefits to the hair. The key ingredients in any moisturizing hair serum are generally oils such as jojoba or almond oil. These help to deeply hydrate and nourish the scalp and strands of the hair. Additional beneficial ingredients may include essential oils, herbal extracts, and other natural additives that can increase shine or reduce damage done to the hair by styling products or environmental factors like sun exposure or dry air.
