Maternity wear is clothing that is specifically made to support and comfort expectant mothers. This has evolved a lot from the days of baggy, unfitting clothing. Modern maternity clothing offers pregnant women modern options that are fashionable, versatile, and stylish. Maternity tops, skirts, and dresses are stylish. They also have stretchy waistlines that allow for growth throughout the pregnancy. Comfortable maternity jeans can be found with elastic panels at the waist, making them easy to adjust as your body changes throughout your pregnancy.

Maternity wear was used in the past to cover the baby bump. Women are now more aware of how clothes fit. The rise in outerwear sales under casual and business wear has been due to the fashion consciousness of new mothers. These products often include a spandex layer or elastane in the fabric composition. Modern mothers are very conscious of their appearance, even during pregnancy. Therefore, maternity wear has become highly customized based on consumer preferences and events.
